

AGAINST THE LOVE OF MONEY

One again, Lord Jesus Christ, I face the power of avarice.

Against the torrent of oblivion, I plead the blood of Jesus.

When I worry about survival and grasp for false security, remind me of a boy who shared his meal so You could feed the multitudes.

When I am tempted to store up treasure in savings accounts, help me to make eternal investments in Your kingdom and trust Your economy of love.

When I wonder who will care for me when I am old, give me elders to love and young friends to mentor in Your way of abundant life.

Deliver me from avarice, that I might know the love that casts out fear and receive the gift Your provision through another's hand.

Lord Jesus Christ, have mercy on me, a sinner.
